Bryce Rusch

Cuyahoga Heights

Bryce Rusch is a junior at Cuyahoga Heights High School and a student in CVCC's Electrical Systems program, taught by Joseph McNamee. After hearing positive feedback about CVCC from his peers and considering that college might not be his path, Bryce felt drawn to the school. His visit confirmed his interest, especially in the Electrical Systems program after talking to Mr. McNamee, likely influenced by his cousins who work in the field and enjoy it.

What Bryce enjoys most about the program is the hands-on learning, appreciating that he's not stuck in a traditional classroom setting all day. He also values the opportunity to collaborate with students from different high schools and prefers the unique environment at CVCC compared to a typical high school.

Beyond academics, Bryce is active in soccer, football, and baseball at Cuyahoga Heights High School. In his free time, he loves riding dirt bikes and spending time with his friends. His advice to future CVCC students is to always put in your best effort and give everything your all. While Bryce dreams of becoming a professional soccer player, he also sees a future in the electrical industry. Keep up the great work, Bryce!
