Sofia Rauschert

Revere

Sofia Rauschert is a junior at Revere High School currently enrolled in the Graphic Imaging Technology (GIT) program at CVCC, where she is instructed by Patrick Ruebensaal. Although Sofia hasn't settled on a specific career path or "dream" job yet, she was drawn to the GIT program because it seemed like a great starting point to explore what she enjoys and what she doesn't. With a love for art and hands-on work, she felt that the program would help her figure out the right career direction. After attending an information night at CVCC, she knew it was the right place for her to begin this journey.

Recently, Sofia helped print the Adult Education catalogs for CVCC and is currently assisting with a book project, specifically a glossary. She has enjoyed learning about and doing digital printing, where digital-based images are printed directly onto various media substrates. Although she's still learning and exploring the print industry, Sofia can envision herself working in this field in the future, though she's currently unsure where she might fit best. She looks forward to discovering the area where she can thrive!

"Mr. Ruebensaal is an amazing instructor with a great sense of humor. He always makes us laugh. Does CVCC do a teacher of the month award? I wish I could nominate him," says Sofia.

Outside of school, Sofia is involved in Scouting America and participates in the International Club and Teen Institute at Revere High School. In her free time, she enjoys drawing, spending time with family and friends, and walking her dog, Teddy. Keep up the great work, Sofia!
